President Announces Accelerated Curricula

Early Graduation Set For Seniors

6 Day Week Is Considered; Summer Session Likely

An accelerated program of studies whereby seniors will be graduated before they reach the draft age of 20 years will be installed at Xavier University with the beginning of the second semester, it was announced this week by President C. J. Steiner, S. J.

Several alternate plans are now under discussion by a council of faculty members called to work out the problem and a decision will be reached by the end of this week, Father Steiner said.

While the acceleration will not be fully effective until a year of operation, it is expected that many of the present seniors will be benefited by the earlier graduation date that is proposed for this year.

There will be no lowering of standards or drastic elimination of subjects in the new degree programs, it was indicated in the conferences already held on the subject. The acceleration is to be accomplished through elimination of the long summer vacation and establishment of a six-day week, it is believed.

During the first week in January, President Steiner attended a conference of college and university presidents in Baltimore, to discuss the question of acceleration. The conference was held at the suggestion of U. S. Government officials and leading educational associations for the purpose of setting up a uniform program in the present emergency.

Representatives of the Army and Navy Departments, the Selective Service Board, the National Resources Planning Board, the U. S. Office of Education and others outlined the contribution that the colleges and universities of the nation could make toward winning the war and more importantly the peace that is to follow.

All expressed the desire that civilian pursuits could continue with the least possible disturbance of established policies and procedures.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps will continue to function in the colleges and universities as in the past, Army officials have indicated. Along with the Officers Training Schools now established in the Army Camps, the R. O. T. C. will continue to be the principal source of officers for our expanding army.

The summer camp period for the members of the junior class enrolled in the Advanced Course R. O. T. C. will be ten weeks in duration instead of six, Army officials have stated.

FIVE NAMED TO ALUMNI BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The election of five new members to the Alumni Board of Governors was announced this week by publicity director Edward C. Vonderhaar. J. Paul Geoghagen, Albert A. Stephen, Harry D. Foley, Paul E. Gosiger, and C. Robert Beirne were elected to fill the vacant posts on the board of fifteen men.

Michael A. Hellenthal, retiring president, has called a meeting of the Cricket this evening for the installation of these men and the election of new officers.

Frosh To Debate With X Hi, OLC

Mr. Williams, S. J., the freshman debate moderator, announced that two freshman debates have been scheduled, one with St. Xavier high school, the other with Our Lady of Cincinnati college freshmen.

Defending the affirmative, Xavier University's debating team will engage St. Xavier's squad immediately after the semester examinations. The subject of the debate, also the national high school topic of the year, will be: "Resolved: That every able-bodied male citizen of the United States should be required to have one year of full-time military training before attaining the present draft age."

The freshman debaters will also debate with Our Lady of Cincinnati's freshman team in February. The date of the contest has not yet been set.

IF THE GENTLEMAN WHO lost a pair of yellow pigskin gloves and a package of Chesterfields at Clear's "open house" on New Year day will contact Larry Janszen at CHerry 6648, his tan reversible overcoat will be duly returned.

Queen And Court Selected For Prom

The members of the Junior Prom Committee, aided by students of the Evening Division, have chosen Miss Ruth Wehage, as Queen of the 1942 Junior Promenade. Together with the selection of Miss Wehage came the announcement of Miss Rita Wesselman and Miss Audrey McCafferty, as members of the Queen's Court.

The Queen and her court were chosen from a large group of candidates nominated by members of the night school, after careful consideration as to beauty, poise, personality, and refinement. These young ladies are well known to many of the Xavier students and their appointment met with the approval of all.

As a result of the election, Miss Wehage will reign as Queen over all ceremonies at the Junior Promenade, together with Robert S. Chalifoux, president of the senior class, and traditional king of the season's social highlight. Miss Wehage will be followed in the grand march by Miss Wesselman and Miss McCafferty next in prominence for

Dads Meet For Election

Reverend Laurence J. Lynch, S. J., moderator of the Dad's club, announced this week that the Dad's Club would meet Tuesday evening, January 20 at 8 o'clock in the Union House for the election of new officers.

William T. Earls, director of Civilian Defense for Cincinnati, will be the guest speaker of the evening, announced William J. F. Roll, retiring president.

Dante Club Opens '42 Lecture Season

"The Madonna In Art" was the topic of the Dante Club's first lecture of the year, presented at the Heidelberg Club's last meeting on January 8 at the Fenwick.

James L. Centner, James W. Hengelbrok, and Lawrence Splain delivered the illustrated lecture.

Dante Club business managers, Muething and Splain, are now making arrangements for a series of lectures during Lent.

Colonel Brumage Named As Military Department Head

Addressing an assembly of the ROTC advanced military classes at Xavier Monday, Lieut. Col. Alpha Brumage, F. A., newly appointed Professor of Military Science and Tactics, was introduced to the cadet-officers by Lieut. Col. Clinton S. Berrien, who has been transferred according to orders from the War Department at Washington.

Before leaving Xavier University, where he had been stationed for a year and a half, Col. Berrien expressed his appreciation for the cooperation extended by the students and commended their spirit. He earnestly advised the prospective officers of their duties in the future and expressed assurance that they were capable of the task ahead. He also informed students that those cadet-officers over nineteen years of age would be commissioned at graduation. This is possible because of a law lowering the previous age limit of 21 years.

Having just returned from an important official visit to Washington, Col. Berrien disclosed that he had been assigned as number two man in an Army Task Force, but that the strength of the unit and its destination could not be divulged. He also gave an inkling of the amazingly industrious activity at Washington, where far-reaching plans are being carefully and thoroughly completed. He stated that the public must remain patient for a prolonged period of so-called "inactivity" but that there will eventually come a period of definite, almost unbelievable results, when American preparedness will be understood. Col. Brumage was then introduced to the assembly. In his address, he asked for the continued, untiring efforts of the cadet-officers and promised an all-out effort on his part. The new officer reminded the ROTC students of the heritage of freedom and happiness that has been won for this country and for the preservation of which they would shortly be cooperating.

Col. Brumage has just arrived from Camp Robinson, Arkansas, where he commanded a large unit recently transported on an undisclosed mission. He was attending Kansas University at the outbreak of the first World War and enlisted in the Army. Attaining the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, 12th Field Artillery, during the war he remained in the Regular Army after hostilities. He graduated from the Field Artillery School in 1923. In the past, Col. Brumage has been a football coach at the University of Kentucky and an instructor of mathematics at the Virginia Military Institute.

Prom Chairman John J. Beckman announces the signing of Bernie Cummins, the fabulous sports prophet and bandleader, to bring his orchestra to the Florentine Room at the Hotel Gibson on January 30, for the season's most colorful affair, the Junior Promenade.

His orchestra which was featured at the Biltmore Hotel, New York, for three years, was chosen to open the Hotel New Yorker. Their recent engagements include the record for repeats at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago; the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, for six months; the Beverly Hills Country Club, Hollywood; the Baker Hotel, Dallas, twelve times; the Meadowbrook Country Club; and they have played Cincinnati seventeen times between the Netherland Plaza and the Gibson Hotel.

Their radio commercials include programs for Lady Esther, Mar-O-Oil, and several rides on the Fitch Bandwagon. They record for Victor under the Bluebird label.

Featured with Bernie is his brother and fellow-vocalist, Walter Cummins, and the cute girl vocalist, Lorraine Parker, who doubles as a mimic.

Bernie calls his style "Varsity tempo," which he describes as "to the ears and feet rather than just to the ears."

His taste in decoration was consulted by Toots Marshall, builder and manager of the swanky Castle Farms resort. Toots had been one of Bernie's first employers, in Cincinnati, at the Toad Stool Inn, during the days when Bernie sat in with the immortal Bix Beiderbecke's Wolverines.

• a change of station—

XAVIER men lost a Professor of Military Science and Tactics last Monday, but acquired a good friend. Not to say that Clinton S. Berrien was not our friend while he was stationed here at all; he was indeed, and will long remain in the memory of his cadets. It would be needless to say that every man in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps "felt the blow" as the Colonel received his marching papers. In his year and a half here, the boys developed a strong affection for Colonel Berrien, as indeed did the faculty and anyone who had the distinct pleasure to come into contact with him in the business and social world. The Senior Cadet Officers would have volunteered to a man to follow the "Old Man" wherever he is going if it were possible. But it isn't, and that's the Army.

And in the same vein let us welcome the new head of the Military Department, Col. Alpha Brumage. He has years of service behind him, and should prove an invaluable aid in the turning out of officer candidates. The military students pledge full cooperation, as they have done in the past.

So we have one man arriving, and one leaving. It would be well for all students to remember Colonel Berrien's last words to the cadet officers; they are particularly apt at this time. He cited a little prayer written in a small black book he has carried since the first World War: "O God, give us strength that we may so conduct ourselves in thought, word, and deed that we may dare to ask of Thee the Victory."

QUID ERGO? ... By Robert E. Kaske

The other day we ran across a list of the great men who have risen from obscurity and poverty into the light of greatness—"men who did it the hard way," the author said. And, just to see if there were not a few that the author had left out, we began searching the corners of our mind for more Lincoln-like careers — and ran smack into that Irish playwright, Sean O'Casey.

If ever any man had the right to say, "I did it the hard way," that man is O'Casey. He was born in 1884 in the poorest section of the Dublin slums. His father died when Sean was three. The mother brought up her family for several years on tea and dry bread, and Sean nearly starved until, in his early teens, he began selling papers on the Dublin streets. It is a matter of record that he never attended school in his life. Not until he was fifteen did he finally, by his own efforts, learn to read and write. "I literally learned to read on Shakespeare," he said later.

With maturity he drifted into the great floating supply of "general laborers", and was by turns a dock-laborer, a hod-carrier, a stone-breaker, a railroad workman, and a builder's laborer. He became connected with the Irish Transport Workers' Union, and went through the famous strike of 1913 wearing boots that had pieces of cardboard for soles. One of the organizers of the Irish Citizens Army, he served with that desperate band under James Connolly until its dissolution, and in 1918 published as his first book The History of the Citizen Army.

Several persons have recalled how O'Casey, bundled in a gigantic trench coat, his cap pulled far down over his eyes, was a familiar figure among the spectators at the old Irish National Theater. Here it was that he probably gained whatever knowledge of technique he now has. He began writing his plays in the evening after work, but had to try eight times before, in 1923, the Abbey Theater finally consented to put on The Shadow of a Gunman. It was an immediate success. In 1924 Juno and the Paycock, a story of life in the Dublin slums, and probably O'Casey's masterpiece, won him world renown. The Plough and the Stars, a somewhat disjointed but amazingly epic treatment of the Irish Rebellion in 1916, was a success in spite of the several riots it provoked. There is a legend of how W. B. Yeats, noticing the growing tumult in the theater, dashed out into the streets, collected a number of O'Casey's friends, and returned to drown out the protests with a roar of applause. But even Yeats would not touch O'Casey's next play, The Silver Tassie; he objected, he said, to the mingling of symbolism and realism. It was later produced in America with indifferent success.

Through all his plays O'Casey proclaims himself an uncompromising pacifist, who holds humanity and truth above national issues. The Shadow of a Gunman and Juno and the Paycock both contain marked pacifistic elements; in The Plough and the Stars the feeling becomes even more pronounced; and the attack is climaxed in The Silver Tassie, a bitter denunciation of wars and the men who make them. This attitude has gone far toward making O'Casey's genius unappreciated in Ireland.

A Protestant himself, O'Casey has lived most of his life among Catholics, and understands the Irish Catholic better than his Protestant contemporaries. Of his personal appearance we have several vivid descriptions. A London correspondent who interviewed him while he was still living in the slums found him to be "a slim hatchet-faced man with pointed nose and chin, and brown twinkling weak eyes," so that he had to hold his manuscript six inches away from his nose in order to read it. Padraic Colum, a fellow-Irishman, describes him as "a man with the long and powerful body, the long and powerful arms, of one who has wielded the pick-axe. He has a salient nose, and a face that bears the earmarks of the many illnesses that he has been through. He is dreamy-eyed and shabbily dressed." We have seen two likenesses of him—a pen-and-ink sketch by Sean Walters, and an actual photograph—and in both we have been struck by the peculiar cynical twist that seems to play around the corners of his mouth. "Here," we said to ourselves, "is a man who has tasted the bitter to satiety. He did it the hard way"

These impressions, strengthened by a few references, may we hope give some picture of Sean O'Casey—in our opinion one of the two or three greatest dramatists alive today.

Tavern Boards Are Heavy In Content

The Mermaid Tavern sponsored its annual Christmas high-day, Monday evening, December 29, at the residence of William Dammerell. Alumni who were present included: Vincent Smith, Richard Kearney, Robert Beuter, Edward Vonderhaar, Robert Otto, Murray Paddock, Edward Doering, Lou Feldhaus, Francis Brearton, Dr. Charles Blase, Lt. Richard Dooley, William Reilly, Robert Groenemann, and Jack Fogarty. Moderator Rev. Paul J. Sweeney, S. J., and undergraduates Robert E. Kaske, host of the Tavern, James A. Rentrop, and Leland F. Schneider also answered the roll call.

Brearton read an article, My Brother, Edwin; Fogarty related the story of Sandy Calnowitz. Vincent Smith donated a sonnet and Father Sweeney completed the night's readings with two Christmas carols.

In the regular, undergraduate meeting of January 5, verse again predominated. Magdalen, by Kaske, Soldier's Reverie by Joseph A. Sommer, and Remember Pearl Harbor by Russell N. Clarke. Essays included This Exchanging World by Lawrence Splain and Sousing at the Mermaid by the moderator.

At the New Year's second meeting, last Monday evening, essays were submitted by James L. Centner, Horsemanship and by Father Sweeney, The Mermaid Tavern in Time and Space.

William R. Seidenfaden offered To Sam Daniel Dierker, Ode to a Little Man, and Life. Kaske and Schneider followed with First Snow and The Answer.

Tennessee Next Foe After Kentucky Win

Meet Tennessee At Knoxville

Approaching the half-way mark in their 18-game schedule, the Xavier Musketeers now embark on three weeks of basketball, short of quantity, but long on basketball quality.

Journeying to Dayton on the 17th of this month for their second road contest, they meet a Dayton quintet, which Flyer fans claim is their best in years. The Red and Blue hasn't as yet been put to a real test but has had no trouble in riding over early season opposition.

One week later, Coach Crowe takes his boys to Knoxville in an attempt to avenge the 46-36 loss suffered at the hands of Tennessee on our floor. The Vols, after compiling a record of 12 straight wins, fell before unbeaten Duke by 2 points in their most recent appearance.

On the second of February, Xavier entertains Wabash of Crawfordsville, Ind. This crew, like most Indiana schools, is generally a hard nut to crack. This year Wabash has a hard-luck reputation. Facing such opposition as Illinois, Purdue and Indiana, the quintet has lost by margins of two, four, or six points. Similar was a loss to a strong Butler team by three points. A great deal of credit for the fine showing falls on the shoulders of forward Greve who ranks about fifth in Indiana scoring.

If the Musketeers can come through with a full stomach on this hardtack diet, the Muskies backers can rest assured the team will show well in the tough remainder of the schedule.

Behind The Blue with Al Mack

THIS GUY ERMAL ALLEN—

If there ever was amore veritable thorn in the side of the Xavier Musketeers than Kentucky's Ermal Allen has been this scholastic year, gentlemen—you show him to me!

First, on the gridiron last autumn, it was Ermal Allen who slung the oval for a pair of touchdowns which enabled the Wildcats to deal the X-men their lone defeat of a seasonally successful football season . . . Then, just last Saturday eve, with but three seconds left to play, this same Mister Allen — 155 pounds of A-1 athlete — calmly tossed in two foul shots to turn a glorious Xavier victory into a heart-breaking 40-39 defeat . . . The irony of it all.

NICE GOING, BERT

At half time of the Kentucky basketball game, Xavier's ace, Captain Bert Robben was presented with a trophy cup for his high scoring record of last season when he rolled up more points than any other player in this institution's hardwood history. Not only in twine trickling did our hoop pilot excel, for "Silky", as his teammates call him, was one of the smoothest ball-handlers on the squad as he has been this court campaign . . . Bert poured nineteen tallies through the basket against the Wildcats to give Adolph Rupp his worst scare of this year.

Allen Stars In Merriwell Finish

BY AL LANTZ

A tragic ending which would well fit a Masque Society production left the Musketeers with lumps in their throats Saturday evening as the University of Kentucky Wildcats sank two free throws in the last five seconds of play to edge out the Crowmen, 40-39, in one of the most exciting battles staged in the fieldhouse this year.

Captain Bert Robben led the Musketeer attack throughout the evening as he shot out far, spun, followed and even swished the hoops left-handed to gather 19 points for individual scoring honors.

'Cats Pull Ahead

The Crowmen opened up with a fast-break and matched the Kentuckians point for point in the opening ten minutes. The Blue grass boys then tightened up their defense and called in their long-range artists who, hitting from near mid-floor, grabbed a seven-point lead before their intermission.

Spirit ran low throughout the Xavier section as the final period opened, but Robben took it upon himself to even up matters. Before the fans knew what had happened, Bert had scored seven points in a row with only four minutes gone to tie the score at 22-22.

Score Tied

Kentucky once more broke into the lead, but Jim Vaughan and Jerry Quinlan appeared and teamed up to control the rebounds. Vaughan then joined with Robben to score a bucket apiece and give the Muskies a three-point lead. The applause was deafening, but once more the score was tied at 38-all.

Jerry Quinlan proved to be the man of the moment at this point. With but two minutes remaining, he sank a charity shot to put the Musketeers back into the lead.

Allen Scores

Kentucky took the ball down the floor but couldn't hit, and the Musketeers once more had the ball with a one-point lead, and eight seconds to go. Stan Ense in the excitement thought it was Xavier shy that point and took a desperate shot only to miss and give Kentucky the ball. Ermal Allen was speeding down the floor, racing the clock, when he was fouled and Referee Lane called for two shots. And the rest was written on the face of every Xavier fan leaving the fieldhouse.

I-M Notes

Because of examinations and the retreat, the next two weeks will see Day League intramurals come to a temporary halt. However, the Dorm League will continue its schedule on Saturday and Sunday mornings.

Only four teams in the basketball league still have not paid their entry fees. All entry fees must be paid by the first of February. If they are not, delinquent teams will be dropped from the leagues.

Bowling entry fees have been particularly slow in coming in. They must be paid if teams wish to continue participation.

'X' GRADUATES IN ARMY RECEIVE PROMOTIONS

Xavier publicity director Edwin C. Vonderhaar announced last Monday that Robert W. Blum '39, and Raymond J. Wilson '40, were promoted to the rank of first lieutenant early in December, 1941.

Blum and Wilson are both stationed with the Forty-sixth Field Artillery in Iceland. Wilson is Battalion Adjutant, Blum a Battery Executive.

Papers Of Three Tavern Members Sent To Contest

Selection of three papers from a total of thirty-six submitted to represent Xavier in the English intercollegiate essay contest, was announced last week. Those accepted were by Robert E. Kaske, arts senior, James A. Rentrop, arts junior, and Lawrence Splain, arts junior. All three students are members of the Mermaid Tavern, campus literary club.

The nine Jesuit schools comprising the Missouri Province participate in this essay contest which has been held annually for the past 51 years. The final judging takes place at St. Louis University and ten places are announced. The announcement of winners is set for the end of February. Xavier's representative of last year, Robert G. Kissel, gained fifth place.

BOOKLOVERS MEET

Mr. Louis A. Feldhaus, instructor in English and Masque Society director, will speak to the Booklovers at their meeting January 21. The topic of Mr. Feldhaus' address will be "The Drama."

In addition to the featured talk the Booklovers will conduct their regular meeting to be followed by refreshments.

War News Is Philopedian Debate Topic

The regular meeting of the Philopedian Society on Jan. 8, was featured by a debate between Richard L. Martin and Raymond C. Pater, on the subject: "Resolved: That All War News Should Be Published and Not Just the Censored War News."

The affirmative as upheld by Martin stressed those fundamental liberties which demand freedom of press. Pater based his negative argument on the great harm which uncensored news could create by furnishing information to the enemy.

Judges Robert J. Heil, Bernard J. Gilday and William R. Seidenfaden awarded the decision in the debate to Ray Pater. Following the debate, an open forum was held with many members taking part in the discussion.

The Rev. Robert E. Manning, S. J., moderator of the Philopedian, reported that important news, resulting from the war situation concerning the intercollegiate debate team, would soon be made known to Philopedian members.

Because of exams and retreats, the next meeting of the Society cannot be held until Thursday, February 5. At the February meeting, debates have been scheduled between Bernard J. Gilday and Joseph A. Sommer, and between Rourke J. Sheehan and Bert J. Downing. As yet, the topics of both of these debates have not been decided.

MUSKETEER HEAD SCHEDULES MEETING

The twenty-five staff members of the 1942 Musketeer, the student annual, will meet tomorrow at 12:20 in Room 10 to discuss plans for the acceleration of publication of their "war" book.

The staff was given permission to continue its work by the Rev. John J. Benson, S. J., dean of the college of liberal arts and was assured by the publishers that the change in publication dates and the defense schedule would not interfere with the year-book plans.

The last week in April was set as the distribution date of the books the News learned Tuesday from Editor James A. Rentrop.
